The history and politics of sport-for-development: activists, ideologues and reformers / Simon C. Darnell, Russell Field and Bruce Kidd

This book focuses on the major social and political forces that have shaped the ways in which sport has been understood, organized, and contested in an effort to engender social change. Integrating the history of international development with the ideas of activists, ideologues, and reformers, it delves into the complex world of sport for development.

Innovations in "sport for development and peace" research / ed. by Megan Chawansky... [et al.]

Transnational organizations and practitioners who use sport for international development often position sport as a unique option for tackling development challenges. While sport can be a tool for social change, the authors in this book explore the latest innovations in sport for development and peace research.
